

Colon Reflorastation Therapy

This treatment is designed so the body's elimination system, when properly maintained, is more capable of healing itself and supporting the body in its daily functions. Healthy eliminations are of utmost importance.

Wastes are then expelled regularly and efficiently. Maintaining a clean, well-functioning, rebalanced colon is one key to vibrant health. This is accomplished by 1) cleansing the colon of toxins and fecal material, 2) re-establishing a slightly acidic (pH of 5.7-6.9) environment, 3) introducing effective strains of sufficient quantity of probiotics to reclaim the area and 4) nourishing this new intestinal flora with proper nutrition.

The normal flora of the gastrointestinal tract contains diverse groups of microorganisms. Research studies have shown bowel reflorastation through rectal infusion of lactic acid producing microorganisms plays an important role in health.
